AES Network - Stronger against Natural Forces

The flooding reported in September 2009 revealed how vulnerable communications and infrastructures can be.

Proven to be a superior solution to alarm transmission, AES is a wireless mesh network that is not prone to the weather or other conventional disruptions.

- Dedicated network for critical alarms
- Supervised health check for transceiver failure
- Not prone to disruption (e.g. thunder storm and road works) compared to leased line or GSM Networks
- Cost-effective

AES is currently used for Fire DECam and high security premises.

Ademco Bus Ads Campaign 2009

ADEMCO's Bus Advertisement was launched August 2009 as part of our brand awareness campaign.

The tagline of 'Threats are not this obvious' is aimed at raising awareness among common public misconception of security risks.

The graphic of several not-so-obvious 'strangers' drives home the message that threats are not always so obvious.
